Former Companions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Dec. 1.—As the trial of Cornelius Shea and his co-defendants continues, the public may learn the authentic story of the great Teamsters' strike of 1905. Albert Young, president of the United Teamsters' Association, was the star-witness for the prosecution today, and testified as to the part that Cornelius P. Shea, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, took in the strike.

Alleged Conspiracy

The charge of alleged conspiracy and Young testified that Robert Noren, business agent of the Garment Workers' Union, provided a fund of fifteen hundred dollars to induce the union teamsters to go on a strike in 1905 to aid the striking garment workers of Montgomery, Ward & Co.

Fund Divided

Young testified that this fund was divided among the different labor leaders, five in all, including Shea and himself. He said that at a meeting of the leaders of the different unions Shea in addressing the gathering said that if the federation of labor would raise the "coin" he would furnish the men to aid the strike of the garment workers.

SKIDOO PROBLEM

A coin collector had an accumulation of pennies. He told his son he would make him a present of the entire lot if he would put them in boxes, the same number in each box.

There was an odd number of pennies so that if he put an equal number in each of two boxes there would be one penny left over in a like manner. He figured on 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21 and 22 boxes, but in every case if he put an equal number in each box, there would be one (only one) penny left over. The son gave it up and told his father he thought it impossible to perform the feat. His father replied: "SKIDOO—23 for you." The son then put the entire lot of pennies in 23 boxes, the same number in each box. How many pennies were there?

To make the problem plain: The entire lot of pennies, from 3 to 22 inclusive, there will be no remainder.

Answer all answers to PUZZLE EDITOR.

500 new pennies will be given to the person who sends in the most skillfully worded correct solution to the problem. 23 pennies will be given to the five other contestants whose solutions are considered by the judges to be the next most ingenious. Short of Metal.

Janesville, Wis., Nov. 30.

Puzzle Editor—Dear Sir: I tried to solve your Skidoo Problem by getting the multiple of the numbers 2 to 22 inclusive and found that there was not metal enough milled to make coins enough to solve the problem. So I went to work as the boy did and I think this is the way he done it: He took 22 boxes and put 1 coin in each box. He found that he had an odd coin and he took that and put it at the side of the box as a tally. He repeated that operation 22 times, each time putting a tally by the side of the first tally. He then got discouraged as he had one coin left in his hand, and told his father he thought it impossible to do it. His father replied: "Skidoo for you." The boy thought a moment and then took the coins in his hand and with the 22 tallies put them in another box and exclaimed to his father, "Skidoo, 529 for me." Now in regard to the pennies being divided by any number from 2 to 22 inclusive there will be a remainder of 1 and only 1, and if divided by 23 there will be no remainder. The first time he went through the boxes he put 23 in the first box with 1 over, the second box with coins added to the first make 46 with one over, which divided by 2 has one and only one remainder. The third box with 23 coins, and 1 over added to the two first boxes make 69, with one over, which divided by 3

23 Pennies Skidoo.

Dear Sir: My answer to the Skidoo Problem is thus: Put 11 pennies in each of two boxes, which will be 22 pennies, and the 23 pennies is to skidoo, as the father said skidoo, 23 for you, which meant for the 23 pennies to skidoo.

Yours truly,

ROADMASTERS MEET FOR ORGANIZATION

A. M. Anderson of This City Second Member of Committee to Plan Association.

A. M. Anderson of this city is one of the prominent figures in a meeting of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway road masters, who are in Milwaukee for the purpose of organizing an association for mutual benefit. Twenty of the fifty-six road masters on the system were present yesterday and there was an increased attendance today. Yesterday the following were appointed a committee to make plans for the organization: J. C. Burke, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; A. M. Anderson, Janesville, Wis.; William Kostmehl, Elgin, Ill.; B. C. Dougherty, Beloit, Wis.; William Shea, Kansas City, Mo. This is the second attempt of the roadmasters of the system to effect an organization. A meeting for the purpose was held at Cedar Rapids, Ia., last summer, but there were only about twelve in attendance, and nothing was done in the matter. The meeting then adjourned to meet in Milwaukee at this time. The roadmasters of the various lines have charge of the maintenance of the line of traffic in good condition, and the principal purposes of the proposed organization will be to exchange opinions in regard to the best way of doing this, and to have a forum of action in regard to any disputes that may arise between the road officials and the roadmasters. It is planned to have semi-annual meetings, at which the members of the association can get together and exchange views. The officials of the road are in accord with the movement, as such interchange will tend to the betterment of the service. Edward Laas of Chicago, engineer of maintenance of way for the entire Milwaukee road, delivered an address at yesterday morning's session, expressing himself as fully in sympathy with the objects of his subordinates.

Charcoal Kills Bad Breath.

Disagreeable Odor Arising from Indigestion or From Any Habit or Indulgence, Can Be Instantly Stopped.

Sample Package Mailed Free.

Other people notice your bad breath where you would not notice it at all. It is nauseating to other people to stand before them and while you are talking, give them a whiff or two of your bad breath. It usually comes from food fermenting on your stomach. Sometimes you have it in the morning—that awful sour, bilious bad breath. You can stop that at once by swallowing one or two Stuart Charcoal Lozenges, the most powerful gas and odor absorber ever prepared.

Sometimes your meals will reveal themselves in your breath. To those who talk with you, "You've had onions," or "You've been eating cabbage," and all of a sudden you catch in the face of your friend. Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of odors, as every one knows. That is why Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are so quick to stop all gases and odors of odorous foods, or gas from indigestion.

Don't use breath perfumes. They never conceal the odor, and never absorb the gas that causes the odor. Besides, the very fact of using them reveals the reason for their use. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges in the first place stop for good all sour breath and belching of gas, and make your breath fresh and sweet just after you've eaten. Then no one will turn his face away from you when you breathe or talk; your breath will be pure and fresh, and besides your food will taste so much better to you at your next meal. Just try it.

Charcoal does other wonderful things, too. It carries away from your stomach and intestines, all the impurities there massed together, and which causes the bad breath. Charcoal is a purifier as well as an absorber.

Charcoal is now by far the best, easiest and mild laxative known. A whole boxful will do no harm; in fact, the more you take the better. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal and mixed with just a faint flavor of honey to make them palatable for you, but not too sweet. You just chew them like candy. They are absolutely harmless.

Get a new, pure, sweet breath, freshen your stomach for your next meal and keep the intestines in good working order. These two things are the secret of good health and long life. You can get all the charcoal necessary to do these wonderful, but simple things by getting Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. We want you to test these little wonder workers yourself before you buy them. So send us your full name and address for a free sample of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. Then after you have tried the sample, and been convinced, go to your druggist and get a 25c box of them. You'll find better all over, more comfortable, and "cleaner" inside.

CAUSE FOR THANKS

COUNTRY, SAYS DUN'S REVIEW, IS MOST PROSPEROUS.

Agricultural, Industrial and Mercantile Activity Surpassing All Records—Wheat Holding Back.

New York, Dec. 1.—R. G. Dun &amp; Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Business was interrupted by the Thanksgiving holiday, but conditions warranted more than ever before a day devoted to grateful recognition. In all departments of agricultural, industrial and mercantile activity the current year is surpassing even the phenomenal record of 1905, which in turn eclipsed all preceding years. Reports from leading cities indicate that trade was well maintained during the past week, and further improvements noted in mercantile conditions.

Holiday goods continue to occupy a position of prominence, but distribution of staples is on a large scale. Leading manufacturing industries are receiving orders for delivery far into next year, the volume of forward business being exceptional for iron and steel products, and a sharp advance in the price of raw cotton testifies to the consumption by spinners.

Wheat is not coming into sight at the northwest as freely as was promised. Western receipts of 4,709,826 bushels of wheat for the week compare with 6,157,958 bushels last year, while exports from all ports of the United States, flour included, were 2,714,461 bushels against 1,087,491 last year, and 1,253,479 in 1904.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for November amounted to $6,809,601, of which $2,957,969 were in manufacturing, $7,643,477 in trading, and $208,155 in other commercial lines.

Bradstreet's says:

Trade has been active as rarely before at this season. Despite widespread holiday observances, warm weather in parts of the south and bad roads in the northwest.

The really serious cause of complaint, a reflection in itself of superabundant prosperity, is the practically country-wide congestion in railway traffic, which affects grain movement, collections and retail trade in the northwest, delays delivery of badly needed coal supplies in the entire west, interferes with the movement of cotton to market at the south and hamper manufacturing operations in the iron and steel, textile, lumber and other trades.

Railway men appear aware to the situation and are working energetically, but the near approach of the winter season renders the outlook dubious.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

This is an age of specialization, and every young man is urged to prepare himself for some special calling. The day for mastering a trade, in many crafts, is a thing of the past.

In all of the large manufacturing plants a man is required to master but one machine; and when he learns to handle it expertly, he becomes a part of the mechanism of the modern factory.

His general knowledge of the mechanical workings of the great industry is extremely limited, and when he changes employer, he must find work where the same machinery is in use. The same conditions prevail, to large extent, in the field of merchandising, which is so largely conducted nowadays on the department plan. The clerk at the glove counter, after years of service, becomes a glove expert, but every other department of the business is a blank.

This same expert, but limited training, is going on in many channels, and while it turns out specialists, it fails to develop "well rounded" men and women.

While this fact may be deplored, it is nevertheless a fact, which the most casual observation will recognize, and nothing but the methods demanded by the progress of the age, is responsible.

The generation now standing at the threshold of life, and waiting for admission to the field of busy activity, is confronted with a proposition radically different from any with which preceding generations have contended, and while the realm of opportunity is larger today than ever before, the outlook, in some respects, is less inviting.

The problems of life, however, are extremely practical, and while no amount of theorizing will change them, it is always well to remember that there are plenty of vacancies, up near the top, in every calling.

It was a popular notion among parents, some years ago, that every boy should learn a trade, and every girl receive education enough to qualify her to teach, if occasion demanded.

Conditions have changed, so far as the girl is concerned; for so many new channels of work have opened up for the girls, that gentility is not confined to the teaching class, and this was the strong argument in favor of teaching.

A trade for the boy, however, is as important today as ever, unless he proposes to enter the professions or semi-professions, in which case he needs all the textbook knowledge he can acquire up to the age of 22 or 23.

While it is true that the industries are associated with grim and sweat, and are less inviting than commercial life, it is also true that the chances for reward and final success are greater in the former, than in the latter, channel.

A clerk of ten years' experience in an up-to-date Chicago clothing store, contributed an article to the Saturday Evening Post, this week, on the life of a clerk, which is well worth reading, and, considering, by American boys.

His pay, $1 per week, had remained stationary for five years, and was the top-notch for men in his department. He worked from eight in the morning until nine at night, six days in the week, and was on duty until noon,unday. He lived in a hall bedroom, and maintained reputation and character by staying in nights, and reading.

He was obliged to wear good clothes and present a good appearance, and in spite of strict economy and no society, but little was left of his income, at the end of the year.

Curiosity prompted him to interview the hod-carrier, the iceman, the laundry driver, the mason, the carpenter, the plumber, and several other artisans, when he found, without exception, that they were receiving from $2 to $17 a week more than he received, and many of them were working on an eight-hour basis.

The most of them were able to support a home, which he had never felt warranted in attempting, and while he had no complaint to offer, yet he wondered at times, whether he had chosen his calling wisely.

This man's experience is being duplicated by an army of clerks, in the large cities. Competition is so strong that their places can be readily filled, and the class of service never commands much of a salary.

It is true that the buyer and manager come from the ranks of workers, but these men have a grasp above the average, and it does not follow that the rank and file can keep pace with them.

The question which perplexes the father and mother, perhaps more than it does the boy, who gives it less thought, is, what can my boy be taught to do to the best advantage, and what channel should be entered.

While the problem is not new, it is more complex today than ever before, and yet many old-time elements enter into it.

It is a popular notion that success, in any calling, results from hard, persistent work. While this is a necessary element, it is not the only one.

Adaptability, or genius for the work in hand, is of equal importance. Many of the failures in life are caused by working in channels where adaptability is lacking.

There are merchants, so called, who ought to be in the factory, and workers in the shop who ought to be behind the counter. Somebody is responsible for starting the boy wrong.

The Chicago clerk at $12 a week is doubtless paid all he is worth, but he might have been earning twice the money at something else.

It pays to start right, in the race of life, and the best friend the young man has, is the man who discovers the channel where he can invest ambition and energy to the best advantage.

When Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco returned from a trip abroad, at one o'clock the other morning, he was met at the station by 5,000 admirers, who stood in the rain and shouted themselves hoarse. The city is under the domination of labor unions, and conditions are deplorable. A correspondent in speaking of the mayor's return, says: "Earlier in the evening, Father Peter C. Yorke, a Catholic priest, made a remarkable speech in which he sought to array the labor unions against other citizens. He told the unions that they must stand by the mayor, or see the union destroyed. He was wildly cheered."

The bureau of engraving and printing of the treasury department has been awarded the contract for furnishing postage stamps and books of stamps for the postal service during the period of four years beginning Feb. 1, 1907. The American Bank Note Co., of New York, was the only other bidder for the contract and was about $17,000 a year lower than the bureau.

Another argument in favor of private ownership. The people are paying $17,000 a year more than it is worth for the privilege of running a government print shop.

Since Aug. 28, last, when the new safe law went into effect, there has been filed with the Interstate Commerce commission 133,000 new freight and passenger rate schedules. This indicates that the commission will be able to secure "business" in large chunks without advertising.

The publicity man is a new element in the industrial world. He is employed by large corporations to keep the public advised of corporate plans and movements. Secrecy in business methods is largely a thing of the past.

The lumber company interested in the Thornapple dam, might have saved money, and a good deal of free advertising for Dietz, if the proposition for settlement, now pending, had been made long ago. Public sympathy is usually with the under dog.

Conditions have changed, so far as the girl is concerned; for so many new channels of work have opened up for the girls, that gentility is not confined to the teaching class, and this was the strong argument in favor of teaching.

A trade for the boy, however, is as important today as ever, unless he proposes to enter the professions or semi-professions, in which case he needs all the textbook knowledge he can acquire up to the age of 22 or 23.

What Is Socialism?

A debating society in Manayunk offered last week a prize of $5 for the best definition of socialism.

Among the definitions submitted were the following:

"Socialism means that no man has a right to starve to death where millions are suffering from indigestion."

"Socialism is other people's money."

"Socialism is the selfishness underneath trying to annihilate the selfishness on top."

"Socialism is the revolution of the stomach."

"Socialism is envy legitimized."

The following definition is the one that gained the $5 prize:

"Socialism is a combination of efforts and theories tending to establish legally among all mankind the greatest possible equality of wealth or misery."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.

Michael Cusack, who founded the Gaelic Athletic association in 1884 for encouraging Irish games, and which now has hundreds of branches, died in Whitworth hospital, Dublin, at the age of 59. He was a famous teacher.

A sensation which may end in a prison term for Cornelius P. Shea was sprung in the trial of union teamsters in Chicago when Albert Young, former president of the Teamsters' International brotherhood, and three other defendants pleaded guilty.

By Tunnel to Ireland.

Although little is said nowadays of a tunnel under the Irish sea, yet it is not impossible that, at some future date this project, which has been so much canvassed, will yet assume tangible form.

Dr. Richards makes a specialty of beautiful gold and porcelain bridge work.

Work just like your own natural teeth.

Look better than your own ever did. Feel fine.

Grind like a set of mill stones.

Last a life time.

His prices are simply $5 a tooth.

No doubt you have paid $10 heretofore and not a bit better work in any respect.

Try Dr. Richards for your next dentistry.

WILL M'VICAR HAD WILD GOOSE CHASE

endeavored to catch live decoy that secured freedom—Finally killed bird.

What was a wild goose chase literally and according to the generally accepted meaning of the phrase kept Will McVicar busy the greater part of Wednesday. A wild goose "live" decoy that his brother Jack McVicar had for several years escaped from its coop and the owner being busy Will volunteered to act in the role of captor. He went for the bird-on-the-run. The goose went for freedom on the run. Will took longer strides and more of them. Mr. Decoy began to use his wings. On and on the two went to the limits of the city, then beyond. The bird was once more learning to use its wings and the pursuer was becoming fatigued. It was then that the chase became fruitless but McVicar had brought along his gun and he finally decided the only thing to do was to "wing" the runaway. The fowling piece was carefully aimed but just as the trigger was pulled the bird fluttered and rose. To the goose it was death, to McVicar disappointment.

The ghost of the old Inning Club which was revived last season and under the auspices of which a very enjoyable series of dances was given, is again showing a disposition to promenade. It is a good ghost and ought to be clothed in the habiliments of permanent life, according to those who were instrumental in its recent resurrection. The plan this time is to secure Roy Carter's orchestra and give a series of informal and unpretentious hops at East Side Odd Fellows' hall. That this can be done at a cost surprisingly conservative is a consideration calculated to meet with popular favor. W. W. Watt, who so successfully managed and directed the dances last year, states that there is a small sum in the treasury which can be applied this season.

Seventy-five young people enjoyed a banquet, given last evening in the parlors of the Congregational church by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavorers. After an excellent menu Dr. F. G. Wolcott, president of the organization, gave the address of welcome and Orville B. Swift responded. Mrs. R. C. Denison toasted the committee and Rev. Mr. Denison spoke on the society's motto: "For Christ and the Church." Two vocal numbers were rendered by Miss Cora Anderson, Mrs. J. F. Pember playing the accompaniment and Master Lowe furnished a piano solo. The Waverly Mandolin club played at the close.

Circle No. 2 of the Cargill Methodist church held a very enjoyable musical recital at the home of Mrs. Thomas E. Bennington, 205 South Jackson street, Wednesday afternoon. SEWERS FLUSHED BY THE RIVER'S WATERS Test Made This Morning Worked Like a Charm—All Work Will Be Over for Season in Two Weeks.

Excavations in the rock for the North River street sewer will continue for about two weeks and then the work for the season will be at an end. Between 500 and 600 feet of pipe are still to be laid. A steam drill is being used in the operations. This morning the flush inlet at Race street above the dam was opened and the water swept through the 18-inch pipe with a rush which highly pleased the engineer and builders. There is another one of these inlets at the intersection of N. Main and N. Fifth streets on the east. The river flushes the pipes much more effectively than several streams from the water works hydrants. An intercepting connection with the Wall and River street sewer has been made and the Blodgett Milling Co. now has no further cause for complaint with reference to the St. Paul sewer which formerly emptied into the raceway on Hickory street.

BITS OF NEWS.

First Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock is arranging for uniform rates for post boxes.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY ELIZA PUTNAM'S SON.

"You all recall the fact that I was sick in Philadelphia," continued Mr. Mitchel, "at the time of the Ali Baba festival. I flattered myself that that was the most artistic thing that I have done throughout this whole affair. Any one seeing me would have been satisfied that I was truly ill, yet, in point of fact, my cough was brought on by drugs administered to me by my physician at my express desire, and for purposes which I had explained to him. I guessed that I had been followed to Philadelphia and took care that I should not be too closely watched, as Mr. Barnes knows. Yet, I expected that after the affair Mr. Barnes himself would come to Philadelphia to see me, and my artificially produced illness was to baffle him. But I am anticipating events. After the train robbery the woman was murdered. By what seemed an odd chance she was in the same house where my wife then lived. I knew that I had been followed from the theater to that house on the night of the murder. I knew that other circumstances pointed strongly to my guilt. But I had the advantage over the detective, for I knew that the man who had stolen the jewels from the woman, not finding them when he returned to New Haven, must have been furious. Judging the woman by himself, he would suppose that at least it was possible that she had taken them from the satchel herself. Then on that slim chance might he not have returned to the woman, and, admitting the theft of the satchel, have endeavored to make her confess that she still had the jewels? Failing in this, might he not either in a fit of anger or to prevent her from "peaching," as they call it, have cut her throat?"

"You are wrong there, Mr. Mitchel," said the detective. "The woman was killed while she slept. There was no struggle."

"Even so, we can imagine the sneak going into the house and killing her, that he might search for the gems undisturbed, and also to rid himself of a companion for whom he no longer had any need. At least, that was the view that I took of it, and, more than that, I felt convinced that I knew the man."

At this moment Mr. Thauret nervously reached forth his hand toward his glass of wine, but before he could get it Mr. Barnes had taken it up, and drained it to the bottom. Mr. Thauret seemed livid with wrath, and a dramatic incident occurred; unobserved by the rest of the company. Mr. Thauret turned toward Mr. Barnes and seemed on the point of making a demonstration, when that gentleman just tipped back his chair slightly, and, meaningly exposed to the view of his neighbor the gleaming barrel of a revolver, which he held in his hand below the table. This only occupied a moment, and immediately afterward both men seemed, like the others, simply interested listeners to the narrative.

"When I say that I thought that I knew the man," continued Mr. Mitchel, "I make a statement which it may interest you to have me explain. In the first place, I saw the fellow who hid the satchel at the New Haven depot. Still I obtained but a momentary glimpse of his face and would not have been sure of identifying him. I will call your attention now to the fact that very slight incidents sometimes lead the mind into a suspicion, which, followed up, may elucidate a mystery. Prior to the train robbery I had met a man at my club one night, or rather I had seen him playing a card game, and I conceived the notion that the fellow was cheating.

"Within a few days of the robbery I met this man again, on which occasion Mr. Barnes was present, and an interesting conversation occurred. I was standing aside, pretending to be otherwise engaged, but really puzzling over the face of this man which now seemed to me strikingly familiar. Of course I had seen him at the club, yet despite me there was an intuitive feeling that I had seen him elsewhere also. In a moment I heard him admit that he had been aboard of the train on the night of the robbery, and that he had been the first one searched. Awhile later he offered to wager Mr. Barnes that various theories which had been advanced as to the thief's method of secreting the jewels were all erroneous. This one remark satisfied me that the thief stood before me. I had not then heard of the murder. Now it must be remembered that I was interested in the meshes of circumstantial evidence myself, so that, besides any duty that I might owe to society, it became of vital importance to my own safety that I should be in a position to prove this man guilty. I formed a rather bold plan. I made a friend of the fellow. I invited him to my room one night and then accused him of having cheated at the card game. He at first assumed a threatening attitude, but I retained my composure and perhaps startled him by proposing to form a partnership by which we could fleece the rich clamborn. I hinted to him that I really possessed less money than I am credited with, and that what I did have I had taken at the tables on the continent. He then admitted that he had a 'system,' and from that time we posed as good friends, though I do not think he ever fully trusted me. I learned from him that his partner in the game where I caught him cheating was entirely innocent and made him promise not to play with him again, for I had discovered that the detectives had been told of this game, and therefore knew that they would be watching both men when playing cards. I therefore preferred to be the partner myself upon such occasions."

Drunkenness Cured.

It will be gratifying to all lovers of temperance and a happy home to know that a simple and scientific cure for the whiskey and beer habit has been discovered. Orrine never fails to cure drunkenness if it is used in accordance with the simple directions in the package, and the discoverer has so much confidence in the treatment that we are authorized to sell it with an absolute guarantee to effect a cure or the money will be refunded.

It is in two forms: No. 1 to be given secretly, and No. 2 for those who wish to be cured, $1 each. Mothers and sisters have told us of husbands and brothers who, since they were given Orrine, in many cases without their knowledge, have lost all desire for drink, and we are glad to recommend the remedy. Mail orders filled: The Orrine Co., Washington D. C. or Peoples Drug Store, or King's Pharmacy.

"Living soror Eat won the fellow's confidence, I was ready for my great scheme in baffling the detective so that I might win my wager and at the same time entrap my suspect. I had concealed the Ali Baba festival. I showed Mr. Barnes the ruby which I afterward presented to my wife. At the same time I told him that if he should come to the conclusion that I was innocent of the train robbery, he might as well remember that I would still have to commit the crime as agreed upon. Then I arranged that the festival should occur on New Year's night, the very day on which my month would expire. I knew that all this would lead the detective to believe that I meant to rob my fiancee, a crime for which I might readily have escaped punishment with her assistance. There he misjudged me. I would not for trolley the sum had her name mixed up in such a transaction. She knew absolutely nothing of my intentions; though being at that time in ignorance of the details of the train robbery, I left her mind in a condition not to offer resistance to the thief, who she might suppose to be myself. Then, after laying my trap, at the last moment I baited it by asking my fiancee to wear the ruby pin in her hair. I went to Philadelphia, and feigned sickness. Then I eluded the spy and came on myself. Mr. Barnes, I supposed would be present, and I had arranged that if so, he would necessarily be in one of the dominions of the Forty Thieves. I had invited my suspect to assume the role of Ali Baba, but he shrewdly persuaded some one else to take the costume, himself donning one of the Forty Thieves' dresses. This compelled me to go around speaking to every one so disguised, and to my satisfaction, by their voices, I discovered my man and also Mr. Barnes, in the final tableau. Mr. Barnes, who evidently was watching Ali Baba, attempted to get near him, and by chance was immediately behind my man. Fearing that he would interfere with my plans, I fell in just behind him. My design was to tempt the fellow to steal the ruby, which, if he did, would satisfy at least myself that my suspicions were correct. It was perhaps a mad scheme, but it succeeded. I had so arranged that every one should pass the sultan and make obeisance. In doing this, as my fiancee was seated on the door the ruby in her hair would be just at hand, and one who knew its high value could easily take it. I fully expected my man to do this, and I saw him gently withdraw it. Immediately Mr. Barnes stepped forward to seize him, but I held the detective from behind, then threw him into the advancing crowd, and, in the confusion, escaped from the house."

Mr. Mitchel paused, and silence prevailed. All felt, rather than knew, that tragedy might be at hand. Mr. Thauret, however, in a moment said:

"Are you not going to tell as the name of this sneak thief?"

"No," quickly responded Mr. Mitchel. "But you are wrong to call my suspect a sneak thief. If crime were a recognized business, as gambling in Wall street is now considered, this man would be counted a bold operator." I confess that I admire him for his courage. But it would scarcely do for me to mention his name; when I am not in the position to prove that he is the guilty man."

"I thought you said that you saw him steal the ruby?" said Mr. Thauret.

"Yes, but I am wrong to call my suspect a sneak thief. If crime were a recognized business, as gambling in Wall street is now considered, this man would be counted a bold operator." "Weakness Cannot Be Cured" by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rattling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, the deafness will continue forever. Nine cases out of ten are cured by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

... We will give one hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by itself's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular free.

Installment Plan Victims.

More than 11,000 people were imprisoned in England last year for debt.

Most of them were the victims of the installment plan.

... Won't Row at Jamestown.

London, Dec. 1.—The Standard declares that the Oxford and Cambridge Boat clubs have decided to decline the invitation to row at the Jamestown exposition in 1907. The reasons given are as follows: First, on account of expense, and second, because there is a strong feeling here that the Americans should establish a big regatta of their own, similar to Henley where foreign crews might compete.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the new world famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as far as this has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

This explains what Dora meant when she asked Mr. Randolph, if money would count with him against her love. When she accepted the wager with Mr. Mitchel, she had been feeling resentful toward Mr. Randolph, who, as long as he suspected his friend of the gravest crimes, hesitated to become connected with him by marriage. This made him less attentive to Dora, so that she had not thought of him as a suitor when making the bet. When he declared himself, she recognized her predicament and was correspondingly troubled, yet determined to win, and so acted as related.

By this time, though Mr. Mitchel had not mentioned the name of the criminal, several present knew to whom he was alluding. Mr. Randolph said impetuously:
